Our project is to uncover patterns and relationships within the COVID-19 data in North America. We'll examine relationships between cases diagnosed and vaccinated populations; relationships between immunocompromised populations and cases vs. vaccinations; tracking the trajectory of new vaccinations by country, as the data admits.